[3.3] Collaborations and Health Services

[3.3.1] Current Collaborations with Health Institutions

Have current collaborations with local, national, or global health institutions to improve health and well-being outcomes.

The Faculty of Medicine University of Indonesia (FMUI) stands as a beacon of medical education and research, deeply committed to enhancing health and well-being both locally and globally. In recent years, FMUI has significantly intensified its collaborations with a diverse range of health institutions, including hospitals, governmental health organizations, and international bodies. These strategic partnerships are essential for addressing the urgent health challenges that affect communities both within Indonesia and across the globe. By working together, these institutions can pool resources, share expertise, and develop innovative solutions to complex health issues.

Through these partnerships, FMUI not only enhances the educational experience of its students but also significantly contributes to improving health outcomes in Indonesia and beyond. Ultimately, FMUI's collaborative approach serves to strengthen both its academic programs and the health landscape as a whole, fostering a healthier future for all.
